

Dear Valued Customer,

25th February 2020

The wellbeing of our guests and staff are of the greatest importance to us.

We are monitoring the Centres for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and World Health Organization's (WHO) statements regarding the coronavirus (2019-nCoV) cases and following the guidelines from these agencies and the local health departments.

To date, there are no reported cases of the Coronavirus (COVID-19) in South Africa. There have also been no travel advisories issued to date regarding travel to South Africa in terms of the coronavirus.

South Africa has a national plan for emerging disease outbreaks that is being followed. Travellers are encouraged to follow the guidance issued by sources of public health information and travel advisories when travelling. South African Port Health officials routinely conduct temperature screening for all international travellers. However, due to the current risk of importation of the Coronavirus from Wuhan City in China, our Port Health authorities have intensified surveillance of travellers from Asia.

We are reinforcing hygiene standards and especially encouraging proper hand hygiene together with using products that are effective against viruses.

We have taken the liberty of including a fact sheet issued by our local department of health on the virus. For further information from our Local Government, please visit <https://www.nowherebetter-campaign.com/coronavirus>

Please contact us should you require any further information.
